MORE MUST ATTEND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Age Limit Raised to 18. For Those to Attend 8 Hours Weekly.

Passage of the bill making it compulsory for children under 18 who have left the public schools to attend vocational school one 8-hour day a week is expected to make considerable of an increase in the enrollment of the Janesville vocational school, according to J. M. Dorrans, vocational school director.

Enrollment in the Saturday day school last year averaged 250 throughout the year. The law before the amendment by the legislature made it mandatory only that children under 17 go to school one day a week. The new limit is set at 18 in accordance with the law in other progressive states.

"We cannot tell the number who will attend under the new law until the census is completed by Miss Enright," said Mr. Dorrans. "By making a check of the children who are now going to school, we will be able to determine those who will be compelled to go to school, eight hours a week."

RESUME WORK ON EDGERTON ROAD-LAY 518 FEET IN DAY

Paving of the pavement on the Janesville-Edgerton highway was resumed Wednesday morning after a delay due to the heavy rains which washed out a part of the track line and softened the narrow gauge railroad track bed.

The county construction gang is more than half-way with the paving to Indian Ford. There is still more than four miles to be poured.

On last Friday the crew had the best day's run of the season. They laid 518 feet in nine hours and brought the week's average up to slightly over 500 feet a day. The pavement is now being laid near the Clavell farm.

Engineers working on the job expressed satisfaction at the material being obtained from the present site. It has aided the workmen to increase the footage laid each day, for there is little waste.

Mrs. L. F. Miller, Phone 200-3, Correspondent.

Evansville.—A pretty wedding took place in St. John's Episcopal church Tuesday at 8 p. m. when Miss Olive Luddington and Terry Bondhus were married in the presence of a few immediate friends and relatives. Several girl friends sang "Wedding Bells Are Ringing," composed by the bride's aunt, Miss Lila B. Luddington. The bride wore a white organdie gown, trimmed with satin and lace and carried a prayer book. The bridesmaid, Miss Isabel Coward of Lodi, wore a white embroidered gown over pink. P. Peasall was best man. Mrs. Calkins played the bridal march. Archdeacon Dawson performed the ceremony, after which a reception took place at the home of Miss Lila Luddington. After a short trip, Mr. and Mrs. Bondhus will be at home at Lake Wilson, Minn.

Mrs. W. R. Patterson is ill at her home on First street.

The Misses Dorothy Axell, Olive Chapp, Bernadine Gillman and Orrill Baldwin went to Madison the first of the week to attend summer school. Martin Colony also is attending.

Mrs. August Kleinsmith is ill at her home on Liberty street.

Paul Chua and family, Albert Lea, Minn., came Tuesday to visit the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chua.

BOYS PLAY BALL WITH KNIFE-NO GLOVES OR BAT

Playing baseball without a ball, glove or bat is the latest diversion of Janesville boys.

The game is played with a knife, resembling "mumblety-peg" in many instances.

If the knife sticks into the ground in a vertical position it counts as a home run. If it sticks into the ground in a leaning position, the long blade projecting outward, it counts as a base. Each runner advancing 3 bases follows one another. If the knife falls on its side it's an out, and it falls on its back with the long blade projecting upward, it's a walk.

The game contains the usual nine innings, each inning having many, after which a reception takes place. It is particularly all the real thrills for the youngsters that count in the national sport.

NEW DRY ARMY TO ADVANCE JULY 1

Vigorous, Sane, Efficient Enforcement Promised by Com. Haynes.

Washington.—Reorganization of the federal prohibition enforcement forces along lines previously announced will become effective July 1. Commissioner Haynes said Wednesday. On that date the new state directors and the flying column of agents for interstate work, directly under the commissioner, will take the field.

The reorganization plans, Mr. Haynes said, had "given remarkable endorsements" from all parts of the country and he expected co-operation from state and local officials to carry out the letter of the prohibition law.

"The country is expecting a vigorous, sane and efficient law enforcement policy," he said. "Much valuable experience has been gained in the first year of operation. Advances will be taken of this experience to put the work on a firmer basis."

There was once a substance called coal

It doesn't take a Jules Verne to imagine the time when our present-day fuel will be gone. But there is nothing frightful in the prospect. Already the world's engineering brains have cast ahead and discovered a new fuel in rain drops and dew fall—water power.

Nor is this source of power a hazy dream of the future. It's here.

In California, for example, 942,000 hydro-electric horsepower are right now turning wheels, lighting cities and harvesting crops.

In the United States as a whole there are 9,000,000 hydro-electric horsepower actually at work—and this is but fifteen per cent of our available supply.

It is to the other eighty-five per cent we must look against the day when coal and oil are museum curiosities.

Just how soon hydro-electric development will come to any community must depend on local conditions—such as how long the coal supply there can advantageously compete with water power.

But in the many places where coal is scarcely to be had, sane common-sense thinking about the relative economy of water power will hasten its coming—to the common good.

We should all understand that water power is not the interest of any particular business—that it is not a political issue, but a great economic one which affects us all.

So its support must come from the people, whose money will be needed to finance it. And rightly so.

Conservation of our national resources is one of the first benefits of water power development. The preservation of forests, the avoidance of floods, the irrigation of arid lands are part and parcel of this program.

Truly, unharnessed water is a national possession which goes to waste as long as we do not use it—and in this day of inadequate production and the high cost of living, any waste is an economic crime.

We are offering to you as an investment the preferred stock of the Wisconsin River Power Company, a water power development here in your own State. Consider the above facts concerning the future of water powers, and invest in this substantial security. Information may be had or subscriptions to stock received at the office of

SOCIAL EVENTS

THURSDAY, JUNE 30

Afternoon—
Mrs. Lawrence with Mrs. Stanford
Society.
Evening—
Mrs. Harry Hamer, club.

Excellent Program at Club—One of the most successful amateur entertainments, ranking with the professional entertainments given at the Country club, was presented there last evening. The program was under the direction of Mrs. Inger Cunningham and the continued applause on the part of the audience showed their appreciation of the excellent numbers.

The following program was enjoyed: "The Barbed Wire" and "The Man Without a Star" were two songs sung by Edward Cunningham. He also sang a duet with Mrs. James Hoffman. "Don't Be Cross with Me," Mrs. Hoffman also sang. "A Cypriot Maiden" and "The Angel's Call" and "Red is the English Rose" and "My Little House." Mrs. Hoffman's voice is clear and sweet and is used most effectively by her with abundant feeling. Miss Helen Franklin, who has been singing in the choir of the church, sang "The Kewpie Doll Dance" and "The Kewpie Doll Dance" was given by Miss Dorothy McCue and Lois Blackford, and the Sellers' Hop-ping by Joseph Peck, Charles DeLong and Miss Jean Brigham gave a solo dance while Donald Flaherty, assisted by the Misses Avis Eick, Ruth Newman, Ethel Connell and Helen Peck gave a solo and dancing chorus.

"HELP WANTED" IS SIGN SHOWN HERE

One Jamesville Factory Running Under Full Speed and Production.

To see a sign of "Help Wanted" on factory doors is rather unusual in industrial centers during the past six months. Rather in other cities there is generally a long line of people at the employment office each morning vainly seeking work.

The sign of "Help Wanted" is up at the Jamesville Shirt and Overall company on North Franklin street for this firm has not been able to obtain enough machine operators.

The company is running 100 per cent production in the Jamesville plant on a full time schedule. They are unable to turn out their merchandise fast enough to supply increasing orders. At no time did this company close its doors. When retail dealers called orders they went on a program of four day production and then to five days.

Soon the orders began to come in and the firm is on nearly normal schedule. They manufacture overalls, work pants, flannel shirts and coveralls. Cotton material came down materially in price with a subsequent reduction in the price of cotton goods. Yet the price paid employees remains the same with the Jamesville Shirt and Overall company. There is sharp competition on the market but the Jamesville concern has been successful in keeping aside with market conditions.

"We are eating much orders which the retail dealer desires to be shipped by express," said Valentine J. Weber on Wednesday. "That shows the stock of goods that we make are being sold by the retailer and his supply exhausted. The bulk of the business is rush mail orders."

"Consequently we have every machine going in this city that we can operate and have advertised for more help. Our fact orders indicate that the present orders is not a flash in the pan or temporary, but that it is a normal return to full time production with good future demand for our merchandise."

With the retail dealers stock are low. This assures a resumption of business by the manufacturers. The producer who kept his organization together and ready for normal production is now stepping ahead of the others, who closed down and now have to rebuild their factory forces," it was stated.

More Employment Open—A survey of Jamesville industrial plants show decidedly hopeful conditions. There is hardly a producing industry in Jamesville but what is showing increased employment activity. Many of the concerns have gone back to full time production, and wages thus far have not dropped. Price reductions in merchandise has been kept on reduced costs of raw material and supplies.

The present industrial situation requires careful buying, not because of increasing prices but rather because of the scarcity of materials. Prices have not been stable. The buyer of raw material might place an order one week with a reasonable price, only to have a lower price quoted next week.

Miss Palmer Takes Lead in Popularity Contest

Miss Hazel Palmer and Baby Thomas Welsh McMillin were leaders Wednesday in the "Popularity Contest" being conducted as a feature of the Public here this week to raise money for a new club house. Miss Palmer is credited with 3,350 votes with Miss Hazel Baker second with 2,725. Miss Hazel Bennett is in third place with 2,620.

The McMillin baby has a substantial lead in the baby contest with more than 2,000 votes separating him and his nearest competitor. His total is 5,182.

Several thousand visited the stands at the Corn Exchange, Tuesday evening, and saw the first open air performance. The block is brilliantly illuminated with long strings of electric lights.

The Flying Caball and Ben Zerella, the high wire king, gave several performances. They will perform every night this week at 8, 9 and 10:30 o'clock.

Caball had a scare last night when he made a sensational dive from the trapeze to the cross bar. The ruy ropes gave about 2 inches as a result of the fall. The right before the lights in his tight wire work.

The standings of the candidates in the two popularity contests as announced Wednesday:

ROTARIANS GET REAL FRIGHT IN REVOLVER DUEL

A realistic stunt was the feature of the weekly meeting of the Rotary club at the Grand hotel Wednesday noon. Two colored men, waiting on table, collided while both carrying trays of dishes. Revolvers were pulled by both of them and shots fired the air for a while. Members were on the tables, rushing out all exits including the windows, until the joke was discovered and the show was found to be a bluff.

Arrangements for the opening of the Rotarade camp are fast nearing completion. Rev. J. A. Melrose reported that the membership list for the first camp had been filled and that eight more could be accommodated at the second camp. The cook has been hired. Members of the camp have been at work at the lake during the past week, setting the place in order. It was stated that a few more tents are needed, either the 10x16 size or the 12x16 size and the club will appropriate it if any citizens will loan one of these tents.

Joseph Scheller and C. M. Fuller were admitted as members. It is the custom to give a flower to those members whose birthdays come within the week following the meeting and Louisa Levy, Robert Bays and H. H. Bliss were presented with roses Wednesday.

Attending Convention—Frank P. Smiley, Rock county register of deeds is attending the state association meeting of registers being held in Oshkosh.

Five sisters and two brothers, none residing in this city.

The Pullmaners were W. E. Hyer, Philip Barker, Fred Wood, Elmer Higgins, George Graham and Clarence Heitledge.

Dr. George Fox.
The funeral of Dr. George Fox will be held at 1 p. m. Thursday at the home, 344 Milton avenue. The body will be taken overland to Oregon for burial.

DROP IN NUMBER OF CHILDREN WORKING

700 Percent Decrease in Permits Noted by Supt. Dorrans.

A decrease of more than 700 per cent is noted in the number of working permits issued to children in Janesville this year by J. M. Dorrans, superintendent of vocational education.

While there were more than 250 children between the ages of 12 and 14 years granted permits last year during the vacation there have been only 25 who have secured them this year so far. The decrease is due to slack working conditions.

Some of the children are working in canning factories, some in garages, others are running errands and doing other jobs. One of the peculiar parts of the child labor law is that children 15 may work in connection with their parents, no one under 17 may work in a store where lunches are served. Several children have been refused permits on these grounds.

SUMMER VACATIONS

The many summer resorts on Lake Michigan and the trips to and from these resorts by water make an attractive attraction to the vacationists. See folders covering these points at the Janesville Travel Bureau advertisement.

POST-OFFICE ALSO INFORMATION BUREAU

Besides the routine duties of the office, the postmaster is almost daily called upon to act as an information bureau. People seeking persons in Janesville go to Postmaster J. J. Cunningham.

Mrs. J. R. Bailey, Oak Park, Ill., came into the office Wednesday morning. "I am looking for some information in regard to my grandfather," she said. "I haven't been here in 37 years."

By comparing aliases of 1873 and 1917 Mr. Cunningham found the Ross farm is occupied by Mrs. Sadie Ross, Henry.

"I wouldn't know this town, Mr. Bailey," she said. "I was living through and wanted to see the old home town and see if the well was still there."

TRINITY CHILDREN HAVE ANNUAL OUTING

Twenty-five children of the Sunday school of Trinity Episcopal church, accompanied by Rev. Henry Willmann, Louise Decker, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hall, and George Richards, the teachers, went to Waverly beach Tuesday for their annual outing.

Swimming, boating and the rides at the amusement park formed the entertainment. A picnic lunch was served.

ONALASKA MAN IS DROWNED IN RIVER

In Cross.—Waldo Hoffman, 23, employed in the pumping station at Onalaska, was drowned in Black River while bathing. The body was recovered.

The body of A. E. Cox, Brownsville, Minn., drowned last February when his automobile broke through the ice here, was found Wednesday at the mouth of Root river, three miles south of the city.

TAFT TALKED OF AS NEW CHIEF JUSTICE

Washington—Recent developments have revived speculation here regarding the possible choice soon of a chief justice of the United States to succeed the late Edward Douglas White. The name of William Howard Taft has been most prominent. It is understood that many indications of the former president have come in from prominent lawyers in all parts of the country.

Judge H. L. Maxfield and Attorney Charles Pierce went to Oconomowoc Wednesday, to spend the day.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Gazette:

As the month of July—greatest patriotic day ever known—approaches, we feel it our duty to again remind your readers of the respect they owe "Old Glory." Not less ago as a military parade passed through the street with the stars and stripes on ahead, we noticed a great many people who stood with hats on and indifferently looked on while a few even remained seated and paid not the slightest attention to the "colors." Others, when reminded, bared their heads and some not even then. Was an American's boast of being the most patriotic nation in the world. Perhaps we are, but do we always show it? Ask any of the boys that have been in France if they ever saw a Frenchman stand with covered head when either the "Tri-color" or the stars and stripes passed by? Showing indifference to the flag amounts to the same as contempt. Think it over and next time the glorious emblem is carried by you in parade, get onto your feet and remove your hat.

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW WITH CHAMPION JACK DEMPSEY

By ANNE JORDAN

(Author of "Wild Vamps of History" and "Clarified Classics")
Staff Writer for the George Matthews Adams Service

Atlantic City, N. J.—A knockout isn't such a terrible thing, unless you happen to be the knockoutee.

I saw Jack Dempsey knock a man out today, and it looked so simple, so easy, so effortless, that I was almost disappointed. Jack, however, was not so easily satisfied. He was looking for a fight, and he found it. He was looking for a fight, and he found it. He was looking for a fight, and he found it.

"I really went out to ask Jack Dempsey to settle all this argument about who is going to win on July the 12th."

"And you going to knock Jack Dempsey?" I asked the champion, point-blank, so he couldn't dodge the issue.

"I don't know," said Dempsey, smiling his nice, even, white teeth. "I only have to win twice a week, to keep from making his face tender."

He won't get confidential.

I was utterly disappointed. Surely if Dempsey had been so sure of his intentions it ought to be Jack.

"Do you like boxing?" he countered, always keen to talk about anything rather than himself. "I like it, but I don't like to be known as Jack. (This mother calls him Harry, they tell me.)"

"Do you speak French?" I came back at him with a left hook.

"No, I don't," he said, looking at me with a question, a bit of his hissing.

"No, Ma'am, I don't speak French," he laughed. "I guess Mr. Carpenter and I won't do much talking at Jersey City, now, added Jimmy."

"But how many rounds do you think it'll last? You ought not to be so modest. Georges has been quoted as saying that he's going to hand you the count in the fourth. Aren't you going to give a few points to your friends?"

"The fourth, is it?" he repeated after me. "I'm glad you said that. I'll have to watch out for that round."

"But you are going to beat, aren't you?"

And then the trolley slipped, the wire again. Jack started talking about cities—Frisco, where he worked in a ship-yard and was discovered as a boxer by Jack Kearns; Los Angeles, where, he said, he was discovered as a prizefighter; but not as exciting as fighting; New York, which he likes better from the suburbs than right in town. Then, yielding to my questions, a bit of his history.

An Early-to-Rise Champion.

He said he could hardly remember when he wasn't boxing. He was about 18 when the first real matches came, however. And under pressure, he admitted that he is about the youngest champion, as most of the others arrived after they were 30, and Jack is only 26.

"Boxing is a game to people," he told me. "Sometimes it comes easy, for some people just take to it naturally; but most of the time success comes only after hard, strenuous work. The secret of it is to keep in trim, never letting up and, most of all, having a manager who understands you and knows how to match you to advantage. Jack Kearns is the greatest manager in the world. I think. And the best part, and all-around good fellow. 'Yes, ma'am, I love all this that you call work. If I wasn't a boxer, I'd still run 10 miles before breakfast and keep in trim. I think you feel so good, and you sleep so well. By 5 o'clock you're so sleepy you can't keep awake.'"

Anybody who has gained the impression from the film now on exhibition that Jack Dempsey has been in Atlantic City sniffing seaweed tinted with a dash of Mary Garden, while Georges has been mulling with moose-cows in a deserted Long Island village, should have seen him gliding in the broiling sun at today's workout.

After tugging at pulleys, dancing a solo shimmy with upturned variations, and back exercises, he sparred with five or six ungainly partners, then finished off with a wrestling tussle with Bull Montana. "I'll bet all the baby vamps who have been represented in B. V. D. bath suits as a background to Jack's scenes, have only caught their glimpse of him while he was engaged in exhibition training at the stadium."

The Better He Likes His Dogs.

I have it on good authority that Dempsey hasn't been in swimming since he came here, and seldom emerges from his fenced-in area around the training camp, except to take his morning runs. Even his burly police dogs, "Doc, Hemingway" and "Sopie Giesberg," have that satisfied atmosphere of "I'm more he sees of women, etc."

Jack is strictly a man's man, and all the fellows who work for him, and with him, are simply cuckoo on the subject of him. They all stand with tears trying to tell you how fine Jack is. Teddy Hayes, his secretary and anti-biographer, or something, had a catch in his throat telling me how Jack went into his first fight with his mother some money, and how good he has always been to his people. He has bought his mother a summer home at Murray, a town house in Salt Lake City.

Jack's mother and father were originally from West Virginia, and he hasn't lost the knack of saying "Yes, ma'am" and "No, ma'am," and other things that make him sound like a woman hater. He speaks with a slow drawl, and has nice, friendly brown eyes, dotted on his forehead by a few honest freckles. His smile, as I said before, is delightful—though you needn't look for it in the ring because, as he says, when he's boxing he means business, and never hears a word that's said; for him or against, from the sidelines.

"Is it true that you're a woman hater?" I asked presently.

"No, ma'am, I like the ladies, all right. Ma looked so boyish as he said it. 'But I don't have much time for them. I like to dance, or try to, but I hate cabarets. And honestly, I hate to go anywhere. People are so well, so funny. They come right up and put their faces into mine, and say out loud 'What's Dempsey?' It makes me feel like I'm a wild animal or something.'"

"Why don't you tap 'em on the jaw like you did that big boy-a while ago?" I asked. "I'm real sorry Mr. Carpenter, after seeing that little feat."

Palms to the Challenger.

"But you haven't seen Mr. Carpenter yet, have you? He's some man himself."

He pronounced it Carpenter, and I felt foolish for still gushing up the Frenchman as "Carpenter-ee," that some high brow had tipped me into titling him.

"I wish you'd go on and say you're going to win. What'll happen if you don't? Carpenter will take the title to France, and then somebody else will try to get it back to America, eh?"

"Mr. Carpenter says he's not going to box again."

"You know he can't mean that! But

COW-LESS MILK TALK OF FORD'S IS RIDICULED

When Henry Ford stopped talking about Hivers and studying history to proclaim cowless milk, he started something.

"The cow is the crudest animal in the world," said the motor car maker. "It is a simple matter to take the same cereals that cows eat and make them into milk superior to the natural article."

Surely this is important if true for it would mean the loss of Wisconsin's dairy interest.

Milk and milk products make up at least one fifth of the national food of Americans. The United States produces about a quart of milk per capita per day and uses practically all of it. Nearly half is consumed as fluid milk, or almost a pint a day per person.

While Henry Ford may know a lot about motor cars, dairy farmers declare his knowledge of milk is just about as complete as his lack of historical knowledge. Further the chemists and scientists back up the farmer in his contention.

Clean milk fulfills all requirements of an adequate foodstuff. Henry Ford or any one else cannot successfully make synthetic milk, say agriculture chemists.

There are certain physiological processes in the synthesis of milk which cannot be duplicated with a test-tube in the laboratory. Synthesis by man is decidedly another story from that of nature. They can make substitute milk, or even dried milk, but when they do the substitute does not contain the elements which make milk the greatest of all foods.

Neither casein nor milk sugar has ever been produced synthetically, yet both are highly important as a food. Most important are the vitamins, which are imperatively necessary to growth and development of the young and the health of the adult.

Artificial making of milk is also declared to be impracticable. The vitamins cannot be put into milk except at a prohibitive expense.

The chemist, according to the world's experts, is not able to rob the cow, or even the hen, of his ancient and honored prerogatives.

Biphale; Truitt struck out of the store a little later with fingers tingling from the pressure of many friendly hands and with tear-blinded eyes. Perhaps this latter fact was what caused him to all but run into a much smaller craft on the wind-swept road. The clouds were broken overhead and the moon, peering through, shed sufficient light for the startled ex-steward to identify his visitor.

"Sue! By Hannah! You ought to be in bed," he declared.

"Oh, Biphale!" she cried. "Pearly and I have been giving the last touches to the Christmas tree. And Pearly—why! where is she?"

Miss Sue had not seen her companion dart ahead to join to join Helmford, who had likewise come down the store steps.

"Pearly's going to live with me," Biphale—for a while at least, Cap'n Jonah will stay with Cap'n Abe here at the store. But Pearly will need somebody to help with her sewing—you know."

She halted with a blush that Biphale did not see. Then, eagerly, "I suppose Cap'n Abe presented the CHAPTER XXIX.

SENTIMENT

"Don't call the others just yet," her father said.

"No, you feel well enough to talk? Don't you think you'd better sleep?" Ruth asked, although she knew in her heart that the next sleep was the long mysterious one from which he would not come back—for her.

"I feel all right. You can call Mary in and the nurses and the doctor, too. If you want, but not for a few moments. I'd like just to lie here and hold your hand awhile."

"Yes," Ruth whispered, patting the hand, her voice ready to choke again. "I used to think because you were deprived of all the nice things a girl should have—because I was so careless when I was young. I had money enough to send you to college, to send you at least to the city, when you wanted so much to go."

"I'm glad I didn't," Ruth insisted. "I'd rather stay here with you."

"But I was always a fool with money. Everything I bought turned out to be a fake. You have your mother's sense. I'm glad of that. You'll be a great success where I was a great failure. Look at you and make it a live one, and you're building up a city where there were only fields."

"I'm only helping," Ruth said, her curious shyness coming back again.

"Yes, Father?"

"Do you care very much for Tim?" Ruth thought rapidly. Then she lied bravely.

"I did at the time, but I've been all over it long since."

"I'm glad of that. I wish you liked Williams—that there are plenty of good men. I hope you marry someone worthy of you and make it a live one, and you're building up a city where there were only fields."

"I'm only helping," Ruth said, her curious shyness coming back again.

"Yes, Father?"

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

XXIII—WYOMING

It is to Wyoming that falls the honor of being the first state to grant equal political rights to women. In fact when congress, in 1868, created the territory of Wyoming from parts of Dakota, Utah and Idaho, a constitution was adopted which gave women the right to vote.

There were rumors of early Spanish explorations in Wyoming, but they were unfounded by fact. Probably the first white men to visit this part of the country were Siur de la Verendze and his sons, who passed through this region in 1749 in search of gold mines for trading posts. In 1804 the Yellowstone was first visited by hunters, although the fame of its scenic beauty was not given much credence until 1870 and 1871 when it was set aside as a federal reserve in 1892.

The first permanent fort in Wyoming was erected in 1834 where the Laramie river flows into the Platte. Later when the government of France passed through this region on their way to the California gold fields a strike of forts were erected along the Oregon trail to protect the travelers from attacks by the hostile Sioux Indians.

Through Wyoming went not only the Oregon Trail, which was opened up by Lieut. Fremont and his guide, Kit Carson, in 1842, but also the Salt Lake Trail. Along these routes many travelers crossed Wyoming, but few stopped and settled there as the country was the most arid of all states. The discovery of gold in 1857 led to the founding of South Pass City and in the same year Cheyenne was laid out by the Union Pacific Railroad company.

Wyoming became the forty-fourth state of the Union in 1890 and is eighth in size with an area of 97,824 square miles.

Today's Short Story

A La Espanola?

The gold letters read, "Senor Alphonse, Peinado y Manolero." To those whom Castilian means only a kind of soap, I would suggest that they peer through the expensive curtains of Senor Alphonse's shop or perhaps to the studio, and see that the woman within are there for appearance sake.

That is, they are supposed to be there solely for attention to their hair, their nails, their complexion. But why do they so patiently wait their turn when the beauty is jammed through the door? Listen, and you will hear.

Said an amazingly candid woman to me:

"Ah, he is so gracious, so graceful, so tender, so obliging and so forgiving. I don't know. He puts your hands and tells you to remind him of a lovely man he played with in Barcelona when a child. Your hair is either a cascade of night or golden flecks. He can say the darriest things!"

I said: "Yes, and probably he is a tenderer from Brooklyn who learned Spanish at a night institute, and now it's easy money stinging all you romantic powder puffers."

The candid lady, thereupon, turned on the vacuum glare and held it on, told me I could say the most miserable things, and said I was suspended from visiting him for all time. Obviously it was up to me to discover the pretty truth about graceful Alphonse, complimentary details of his history, narrative of his life, and a rule with a luscious tugging ring—to back up a complete and abject apology.

But I was saved the labor of love, for didn't the candid lady telephone me a few nights later to tell me she was friendly? She did, and this was her refrain: "I have to admit you were right about Alphonse, right but offensive."

It seems a rather masterly plump woman had installed herself as cashier of the establishment. Alphonse said that the police got and potted puffer was at an end, Alphonse, another man, seemed in a dream from which not the most ludicrous patroness could arouse him. Between customers he would slip up to the balcony, cashier and passionately kiss her fat and pudgy hand. She, conscious of facts, smiled a bit, wet her lips and swallowed, and looked out at (and so) the disappointed waiting women.

To go back, Alphonse, the old Alphonse, had a new clientess one day. Enormous she was, a super-perfect 48, and with six prosperity in her round face and pudgy big hands. She was the cashier.

After his usual excessive program, and after she had been in delicious torment while he shampooed and dried her hair—and after her blushing and quick breathing had subsided—they got to talking over their hands, for

Physician Explains Who Should Take Nuxated Iron

Practical Advice on How To Help Build Up Great Strength, Energy and Endurance.

"Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life," says Dr. James H. Francis, Surgeon, U.S. Army, and the Westchester County Hospital, New York.

"The iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while it is iron in form just as it comes from the mine, is transformed into a beautiful, sweet-tasting, and easily absorbed form of iron in Nuxated Iron. It is a concentrated form of iron, and is estimated to be approximately equivalent to one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen baked apples. It is like taking extracts of beef without ever realizing the real taste of beef."

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It quickly helps make rich red blood, revitalizes worn-out exhausted nerves and gives increased strength and energy. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturer if it does not produce satisfactory results. For sale by all druggists.

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please print a letter that is a good skin whitenener. THANK YOU.

A teaspoonful of the tincture of benzoin to a ounce of rosewater forms a well-known lotion, which is excellent for whitening the skin.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married woman. My husband is careless and mean to me and I have lost my love for him entirely. I have a better chance to make good by marrying a man whom I love. My heart is broken. Will I be happy again if I get the man I love? Now I cannot eat I am so unhappy. I am only 27 years old.

BROKEN HEARTED.

It rarely pays to divorce one husband in order to marry another. The second usually proves to be just as bad or worse than the first.

become white. Then take a dry cloth and rub them briskly. This will put a neat shine on them.

kind of man. I think your father will realize that you are right and he will try to help your mother to see her mistakes.

When asked to do things, do them cheerfully. If you are resentful, you make yourself unhappy and hurt your own disposition. Of course your little brother should be asked to carry a chair to the front porch, but if he is not and you have to do it, it hurts him and not you unless you are disagreeable.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 14 years old and I have a little brother. My mother makes me do everything and she thinks he is too young to do anything. He blames things on me whether I do them or not. Father is not that way. I think he takes my part lots of times.

Last night I got scolded by mother because my brother made too much noise while he was sleeping. She said it was my place to keep him still. When she asks me to do it even if my brother is in the room.

What can I do to make mother love me as much as she does my brother? BROKEN HEARTED SISTER.

Your mother loves you as much as she does your brother, but he is younger and she is blind to what he is doing. I would advise you to have a confidential talk with your father. Tell him that you think your little brother is being spoiled so that when he grows up he will not be the right

AT STATION FARM

A STATION FARM

Rock County Has Largest Delegation at University Farm Day.

Two hundred farmers from Rock County, making the largest delegation from any county, on Tuesday attended the field day demonstration at the college of agriculture.

The farmers who arrived in the morning attended the Soils Demonstration where Prof. Grif Richards explained the value of different fertilizers on the University Farm.

At eleven o'clock Prof. Glifford gave an orchard spraying demonstration. He recommended three sprayings for orchards and showed how three sprayings of the university orchard had given them almost perfect fruit.

At noon a big picnic was enjoyed on the banks of the lake.

Afternoon Program.

In the afternoon the men made a trip over the Hill farm and saw the different experiment plots. Prof. R. A. Moore showed how early sown winter wheat was much better than the late sown wheat.

Prof. W. H. Briggs advised the farmers to grow soy beans whenever possible. The varieties he recommended for Southern Wisconsin were the 120

Many of the farmers saw for the first time a field of Hubam sweet clover. While this clover has an excellent reputation in Iowa and Illinois, it does not seem to be doing very well on the college farm.
